

MODERN CHIVALRY.

THE ELOQUENT LECTURE OF DR. HOGE AT THE CENTRAL.

Governor Gordon introduced the Distinguished Speaker, who for nearly two hours enthralled the attention of a large and appreciative audience—Synopsis of the Lecture.

A large and thoroughly appreciative audience enjoyed the fine lecture of Doctor Moses Hoge at the Central Presbyterian church last night.

The Introduction.

Governor Gordon introduced the noted divine who he felt like reversing the order and introducing the audience to the orator, as he was more interested in them than they to him. Here, said the governor, was a man of great intellect and the highest culture who had given his time and talents to the elevation of his kind. The soldier, the statesman, the philosopher, have claims upon the respect of the nation, and the world judges their work by the notices which they receive. But in the calling represented by this man, there is no room for selfishness. I have the honor to present one of the noblest representatives of the noblest of all professions.

The Orator's Appearance.

Dr. Hoge is a man of striking physique. His figure is a slender, strong, clear, penetrating, strong and sympathetic, his action full of nervous energy. There is something peculiarly magnetic in his very presence.

He spoke an hour and a half, and enthralled the audience throughout.

No adequate idea of the magic of his delivery and the beauty and power of the lecture can be expected in a running sketch. "I would be glad," said he, "to reverse the order of this evening and introduce my friend, Governor Gordon—a man as heroic in action as he is eloquent, who could introduce Dr. Hoge, who in turn would introduce 'Modern Chivalry.' To do that it would only be necessary to introduce Governor John B. Gordon."

The Old Chivalry.

He eloquently reviewed the career of Edmund Burke, and spoke of the noble manner in which the great Englishman had vindicated our forefathers in his speeches on American affairs. Englebien now recalled those burning words with a smile. His speech was a splendid addition to the great trial of Warren Hastings, and received with fine effect the closing words.

Burke had more sympathy with beauty and rank than with the poor, and he made a great mistake when in his enthusiastic defense of the queen of France he said that chivalry had perished.

Some Good Elements.

While the loss of the old system of chivalry was not to be deplored, it had some good elements. The nobles, the priests, the learned men, and the bratians of the middle ages, abominated the horrors of murderous war, gave gentleness to brutal manners and rescued debased women from their degradation. Still the old chivalry was fanatical, fantastical and narrow. Knightly grace, ready relief to a gentleman in distress, bold and boor or peasant might excite their mirth but was too far below them to secure their help.

The Chivalry of Today.

But there never was a chivalry so pure and noble as that which now prevails. The crusade against ignorance, superstition and intemperance now being carried on are the grandest the world has ever seen. It is a Christian chivalry, everywhere was founded on the principles of charity and chivalry fell with it.

A Grand Idea.

But there never was a chivalry so pure and noble as that which now prevails. The crusade against ignorance, superstition and intemperance now being carried on are the grandest the world has ever seen. It is a Christian chivalry, everywhere was founded on the principles of charity and chivalry fell with it.

THE DEBATERS APPOINTED.

Members of the Boys' High School Selected for the Positions.

Yesterday afternoon at the meeting of the A. L. and D. society of the Boys' High school the following members were appointed for the following places. The appointees consider this a high honor as they were selected from 100 boys, all striving for the places.

THE DYING NOVELIST.

With this new chivalry had come new ideas, one of which was growing rapidly. It was that the richer the man the greater his responsibility to use his wealth for the good of the community, state, country and race. The time was coming when people would not ask of a man who wanted the suffrages, "How much is he worth?" but "What has he done?"

The Men To Love.

He dwelt vivid pictures of the men who win the admiration and affection of the public, in this order: the patriot-citizen, the patriot-soldier, the inventors, the teachers in schools and professors, the philanthropists and the statesmen.

The lecture abounded in beautiful and striking illustrations, one of the finest being the graphic description of the attempt of Charles Edward to regain the crown of England

The Confederate Home.

He concluded by saying that nothing had greater or more noble than the work which is being made to build a confederate home at Hamburgh.

No nobler enterprise could be set to foot. He hoped that upon his next visit to Georgia Governor Gordon would be able to show him the completed Confederate Home of Georgia—a beautiful evidence of that Christian chivalry which cares for those who need help.

COWAN IS STILL HERE.

And He Is Anxious to Institute Proceedings Against His Assailant.

It was stated yesterday that T. A. Cowan is still here.

And he wants satisfaction for the injuries received at the hands of Mr. E. C. B. Austin, in regard to the matter, and has expressed a desire to swear out a warrant for assault with intent to murder.

But instead of that it is possible that he may bring an action for damages in the civil side of the court, and it is quite probable that he will assert himself in some way that will bring the case before the courts in a few days.

Death of Baby Sturges.

A very sad death occurred Friday morning at 5 o'clock, at No. 7 Maratta street, when Edith Margaret, the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sturges, the little creature with a face beyond compare, died at the hands of her parents, and by her last words are left desolate.

The funeral will take place from the house at 10 o'clock, and the child will be interred in the Westview cemetery.

Mrs. Kirbo's Funeral.

The funeral of Mrs. A. Kirbo occurred at 111 Rawson street, the family residence, at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The interment took place at Oakland. Many friends of the deceased were present to pay their last respects to her memory.

Mr. Hancock's Funeral.

The remains of Mr. W. H. Hancock were shipped to the old home of the deceased, Monticello, at six o'clock yesterday morning. The family accompanied them, and the interment will take place at the old burying ground today.

Dr. Gilbert's Funeral.

The body of Dr. Joshua Gilbert found a last resting place in the quiet precincts of Utoy churchyard yesterday. Several of his old comrades went out to attend the funeral.

Schiller's Bell.

Those taking part in the entertainment are to be seen at the open house, in costume, at 6 o'clock Sunday evening.

NO ONE WILL BE ADMITTED TO THE STAGE WITHOUT A TICKET, WHICH WILL BE FURNISHED BY MRS. FORCE.

Those who are taking part in the scenes, choruses, escorts, or friends, are requested to remain in from as there will be no admission to the stage.

BY ORDER OF THE MANAGER.

Important Changes.

On May 1st Messrs. Albert & Smith, who have occupied apartments on the second floor of THE CONSTITUTION building for a number of years, will remove to a suit of rooms on the third floor of the Gate City bank building.

The new building is occupied by the Piedmont Express company, the contract having been signed yesterday morning.

THE GUARD WILL DRILL.

The German Fusiliers May yet be Accommodated.

The following letter, handed to THE CONSTITUTION by a committee of the Gate City Guard, explains itself.

The Guard will drill the Fusiliers and on their own terms.

Atlanta, Ga., April 17.—[Special.]—An officer of the German Fusiliers writes the following:

CHARLESTON, S. C., April 17.—[Special.]—An officer of the German Fusiliers writes the following:

ATLANTA, Ga., April 19.—Editors Constitution:

The following letter:

The rehearsals for "Pinafore" are progressing smoothly and the ladies and gentlemen interested feel confident that the entertainment will be a brilliant success. Last night there was a full rehearsal of cast and chorus at the open house under the direction of Professor Salter, and the work done by all the participants showed that the company in its present state is an excellent one. Pinafore will be produced the 3d and 4th of May—Friday night and Saturday matinee. The cast character will pay their expenses. If they prefer to have it will be paid.

Let the Gate City Guard stand up.

We would say that any statement that we were unfairly treated by the Fusiliers at Jacksonville is untrue and unwarranted, but on the hand, we look on the Fusiliers as our best friends, owing to their relationship towards them several years ago.

They will doubtless remember that the Gate City Guard gave three cheers for the Fusiliers as they marched on the drill ground at Jacksonville.

The above informal challenge we could under no consideration accept, as in accepting we would admit that we were unfairly treated at Jacksonville, but the Fusiliers desire to make a proposition to drill the Gate City Guard for $500 a side, on above terms, a formal challenge will receive our prompt consideration.

It must be understood that we expect the original challenge, as to terms, and not a revised edition. Now let the Fusiliers come to the Gate City Guard.

GOOD FRIDAY.

Special Services Held in the Churches Yesterday.

There was a special three-hour agony service at St. Philip's church yesterday, commencing at 12 o'clock.

The large congregation were deeply impressed by the beautiful lecture of the Rev. Mr. Holley on the crucifixion. On the altar was a beautiful cross composed of gas jets. At times the rector and congregation were visibly affected by the solemn services, and the singing was done with great fervor.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Howell, of New York, who spent some time in Atlanta last winter, are at the church.

Miss Birdie Brown, of Nashville, arrived yesterday to be the guest of Mrs. Albert Thornton, on Peachtree. Miss Brown is the daughter of ex-Governor Brown, of Georgia, and is a famous belle and beauty in a state noted for beautiful and attractive women. Miss Brown has recently come to Atlanta with her father, and a column of the Daily Morning News is taken up with entertainments given in their honor and praise of the young lady's many attractions.

Mr. W. B. Orr has gone for a tour through the South. He is accompanied by his wife, and a two weeks' visit to the South.

The services at St. Luke's were very impressive. Bishop Beckwith delivered a strong and beautiful sermon. The music was fine and the attendance large.

The special services at the Catholic churches were beautiful and appropriate.

A NINE-YEAR-OLD BOY.
HIS PARENTAGE THE MAIN POINT IN A SLANDER SUIT.

Thrower vs. Barker, Before Judge Marshall J. Clark in a Suit for $10,000 for Slander—The Big End of the Last Prohibition Campaign Brought Up in the Suit—The Lady Who Adopted the Child Tells the Story.

A nine-year-old boy. The chapter of his mysterious finding and adoption by Mrs. Ryman was the main point in a slander suit yesterday.

Toward the end of the last great prohibition campaign, Mr. Charles B. Barker and Mr. J. G. Thrower had a disagreement, and Mr. Barker said that Mr. Thrower was the father of an illegitimate child, and that he contributed to its support.

Mr. Thrower heard of the story, and when he and Mr. Barker met, a right result. Barker had Mr. Thrower arrested and tried for assault upon Mr. Thrower having got the best of the fight.

THE SUIT FOR SLANDER.

Mr. Thrower then instituted suit for slander against Mr. Barker, and besides denying the story, he alleged that it was not only to injure himself, but the prohibition cause.

He asked for $10,000 damages.

He also instituted proceedings for criminal libel, which has not been tried.

Yesterday the suit for slander came up for a hearing, and the defendant filed a plea for justification. He said that he not only told the story, but could prove the truthfulness of it, and began by producing Mrs. M. Ryman as a witness.

THE STORY OF THE CHILD.

Mrs. Ryman stated that Mr. Thrower had been quite intimate with her family, she and her husband were childless, and that he had been induced to coming to them and playing chess with them.

One occasion he had come there and she was dressing a doll. He remarked that the only thing that household lacked of being a happy one was the presence of a bright little baby, and had suggested that they ought to have one.

She had replied that her husband was in moderate circumstances, and that although she would like to have one, they did not feel like assuming such a burden.

Afterwards they had another talk about the matter in a private way, and Mr. Thrower suggested that he thought he could procure her just such a baby as would brighten up the household.

Finally, he asked her what sort of child she would like, and she replied that blonde boy would be nice. He then said that he had time to get away.

They then made an agreement that Mr. Thrower was to come to the house on a certain night, about eight o'clock and and she was not to look out until he had time to get away.

On the night of January 25th, 1881, she claimed that he came, according to promise, and when he had left the child and gone off, she went out and found a boy baby, about one year of age.

She kept the knowledge of how she had obtained the baby from him for a long time, as she loved the child and wanted all question of its parentage, or whence it came, kept from any one else but herself.

She said that Mr. Thrower agreed to contribute to its support, which he had done occasionally, at different times, as the child grew up.

A GRAY SHAWL.

The baby was wrapped in a gray shawl, and two or three nights after it had been left Mr. Thrower returned and got the shawl, saying that it might lead to unpleasant suggestions.

"Not long afterwards he asked permission to bring a lady to see the child, which was granted, and one night he came bringing with him a widow, Mrs. W. H. H. who became very much interested in the baby."

She then began to drop in for occasional visits, and its fine appearance and helpless condition so wrought upon her feelings that she made it a dozen linen aprons and brought them to it.

PROVOCED FOR ITS COMFORT.

Mrs. Ryman further stated that Mr. Thrower had at one time brought a hammock and hung it up for the use of the baby, and, picking it up, had kissed it and said, "God bless you!"

Afterwards he hung mosquito netting around its resting place, and purchased a baby carriage for the boy, and after he had grown large enough to sit up, he bought a toy wagon for the baby to play with.

Mrs. Ryman having told her story, other testimony was produced to show that Mr. Thrower had paid attention to the child, and had made a set of presents.

MR. THROWER'S DEFENSE.

Mr. Thrower gave a most emphatic denial to the whole story.

He said that he knew nothing of the child, its parentage, had no arrangement with Mr. Ryman to keep the child, and if he had ever given it money, or purchased baby carriages and so on for its use and comfort, he had no recollection of the matter.

He might have kissed it, being very fond of children, and he might have made the boy something to eat, but he would not have kissed the father, nor had he the idea who was.

MR. HENDRICK'S STATEMENT.

She said that she had heard of the child and read of it in the newspapers, and that she had been interested in it.

One day she had come to pay Mrs. Ryman a visit, being intimate with her, and when and Mrs. Thrower was she was well acquainted, and that he had simply gone along with her to see the child.

She denied any knowledge of its parentage or of anything connected with its history.

In rebuttal Mrs. Ryman denied that she and Mrs. Wilson were intimate friends, and stuck to her original story.

ONE TO THREE.

After this the jury sat about four o'clock and failed to agree until the hour of adjournment. The court instructed them to hand the verdict to the bailiff in charge if they should come to an agreement during the evening.

On next Sunday at 11 a.m. Rev. James T. Lewis with D. W. Pendleton, M.D., will preach at the Central Presbyterian church, on Washington street, to his former congregation.

At 5 p.m. Rev. Moses Hoge, D.D., of Richmond, Va., will fill the pulpit. Two of the grandest sermons ever heard in Atlanta may be expected. Go and hear them.

THE SOUTHERN HARMONICA.

The talented Mrs. Hugh Angier, soprano, supported by a splendid choir composed of Miss Harry Hammond, alto; Prof. Shepherd, bass; the noted Miss Eliza Harriet, providing at the organ; Mr. E. C. Pendleton, cornet; Mr. W. A. Pendleton, grand master of fife; Mr. Pendleton, drums, and lovers of good music who will attend the church services, will hear the following:
